The Huayllarcocha and Mahuaypampa Communities

Two wheels is the most exhilarating way to see the most of the Land of the Incas
at the closest perspective.

We begin the adventure on the highest point of the Valley, the village of Chinchero.
This is an archaeological site, known for its mixture of Inca and colonial structures.

From this point, we get on our bikes and take rural routes between fields of potato and other grains. Lovely views of the Vilcanota Mountains accompany us as we ride. At Huyapo Lake, we change direction and proceed to the communities of Huayllarcocha and Mahuaypampa, where we have a snack and spend a few minutes seeing the lives of the villagers.

From here, we continue our journey to Moray, another significant archaeological site, famous for its concentric terraces built by the Incas. We rest here and have lunch. Then we explore these remarkable terraces, which may have been served as testing center to adapt crops from the valley to higher altitudes or vice versa. In the afternoon, we take a mule track to the colonial town of Maras these five miles are a pleasant fun ride.
